

Top Picks: Most Innovative Products Of 2010

It wasn't easy, but we sorted out the best products from the past year.

BY RONELL SMITH

(Ed. Note: This compilation represents only the views of the writers and editors of BASS in an informal poll.)

There isn't a month that goes by when someone doesn't ask this question: "What's caught your attention lately?" Usually, there are three to five cool products swirling around in my head, so I almost always single one of those out and highlight what makes it so innovative.

Because of the frequency of such questions, FTR decided to solicit the opinions of BASS editors and writers for the most innovative products from the last year, by category.

As you can expect, we didn't all agree. But in the end, the votes are tallied up and we let the winners shine through.
